

HOW TO GET INVOLVED

Careers IN AGING — Month —

Get ready to explore the world of careers in aging

As we all strive to live longer and healthier lives, the demand for professionals in this field is growing. That's where Careers in Aging Month (CIAM) comes in, shining a spotlight on the diverse array of career paths available in the field of aging.

Here's how you can join in on the excitement during CIAM:

For Providers/Organizations:

- > Open your doors for a facility tour and showcase the work that happens behind the scenes to students, parents, and teachers.
- > Reach out to local elementary and high schools to spread awareness about careers in aging and inspire the next generation.
- > Enhance job fairs by highlighting the exciting opportunities in aging careers to spark interest and curiosity among students.
- > Organize a community event to celebrate aging careers, partnering with local businesses and organizations.
- > Share your journey on social media with #CareersInAging to help generate conversation and engagement.
- > Host virtual events, such as podcasts or webinars, to make information about aging careers easily accessible to a wider audience.
- > Recognize and appreciate your staff by hosting a celebration to thank them for their hard work and dedication. Invite staff members' families, as well as residents and their families, to join the festivities.

For Educators:

- > Facilitate intergenerational conversations to explore diverse perspectives on the future of aging.
- > Invite professionals for a Careers in Aging Panel Discussion to highlight the many paths within this diverse field.
- > Launch a social media campaign to raise awareness and promote proactive conversations about aging.
- > Connect current students with program alumni to provide valuable insights and mentorship.
- > Organize a Careers in Aging Career Fair to connect students with local employers and showcase opportunities in the field.
