Join us in Promoting the Diverse Career Paths in the Field of Aging

People are living longer and populations are aging worldwide. The demand for professionals with expertise in aging is growing rapidly. Careers in Aging Week is observed by businesses, clinics, coalitions, organizations, universities, colleges, health care providers and other parties across the world. The goal of Careers in Aging Week is to bring greater awareness and visibility to the wide-ranging career opportunities in the field of aging.

Please utilize the materials provided in this toolkit to spread the message.

Ideas for Promoting Careers in Aging

Host a virtual event
Consider hosting a virtual event in conjunction with Careers in Aging Week to raise awareness about the diverse careers available in the field.

• Invite a speaker to present online to talk about advances in the field and research that will provide a better, brighter future.
• Offer a live or recorded webinar to your local public school system about the many career paths available in the aging field.

Inspire the next generation

• Schedule an online visit with your local middle or high school where you can speak to students about your experience in the aging field and the many opportunities available to them across all education or training levels.

Spread the Word

• Submit a letter to the editor or send an e-mail to a local reporter to let them know about Careers in Aging Week and the importance of encouraging the next generation to enter the field bringing new ideas and programs to advance innovation in aging.

Get Social

• Show your support for the field of aging—post articles, research or news. Don't forget to tag us on Facebook or Twitter (@GeronSociety).
• Look for #careersinaging and like, share, and comment.
• Tell your story about why you entered the aging field and how it has inspired you. Check out sample social media posts in the Social Media section.
